Navy Officer Killed In 1943 Is Awarded Legion of Merit

Posthumous award of the Legion of Merit to Lt. Com. Howard Robert Garner, U.S.N., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Garner, 945 Cherokee Road, killed in a training accident in 1943, was announced yesterday.

A native of Lawrenceburg, Garner graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1929 and from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1933. He was serving as assistant to the head of the preliminary design section, Bureau of Ships, conducting experiments in Chesapeake Bay and was lost when a ship he was testing capsized in April, 1943.

The citation, presented to his daughter, Celia, 4, stated:

"Realizing the growing importance of underwater demolition and protection systems, Lieutenant Commander Garner planned and executed tests in an underwater explosion testing program and then applied the results of these tests to new designs of warships. By his technical knowledge and leadership in this field he contributed immeasurably to the designing of underwater protection systems of new ships which were built in time to take
